Veteran Political Writer Raps Public Opinion Polls

Washington.—The advice of a veteran newspaper political writer, who counsels against putting too much trust in the accuracy of public opinion polls, is being studied for the first time by the editors of the political decision makers.

When the polls are taken for 20 years has discussed political and political reasons for the New York "Times," has written a book titled "Polls and Politics," and has been a member of the National Bureau of Public Opinion, the said editors, and when he goes through there isn't much left of the polls and the politicians.

He remembers that in 1926 the "Literary Digest," which then reported the results of a poll of 2,000,000 voters, predicted that Franklin D. Roosevelt would win the White House. The poll was taken by the "Literary Digest" and the results were not accurate. The poll was taken by the "Literary Digest" and the results were not accurate. The poll was taken by the "Literary Digest" and the results were not accurate.

"It happens that in a number of the last two free elections—1924 and 1928—the results of the polls were not accurate. The poll was taken by the 'Literary Digest' and the results were not accurate. The poll was taken by the 'Literary Digest' and the results were not accurate. The poll was taken by the 'Literary Digest' and the results were not accurate.

There was the Dr. Phil, which predicted the election of Franklin D. Roosevelt. The poll was taken by the 'Literary Digest' and the results were not accurate. The poll was taken by the 'Literary Digest' and the results were not accurate. The poll was taken by the 'Literary Digest' and the results were not accurate.

More gives any number of other examples. He warns his readers that the polls are not accurate. He warns his readers that the polls are not accurate. He warns his readers that the polls are not accurate.

He also emphasizes that there may be any possible reason for the inaccuracy of the polls. He warns his readers that the polls are not accurate. He warns his readers that the polls are not accurate. He warns his readers that the polls are not accurate.

For example, "The Gallup may announce, early in the presidential year, that 54 per cent of the people are in favor of the Republican nomination and 46 per cent are in favor of the Democratic nomination. But when the election comes, the results may be entirely different. The poll was taken by the 'Literary Digest' and the results were not accurate. Laredo—Farm labor representatives from the United States and Mexico agreed to pursue a common policy to protect the rights and interests of Mexican nationals who migrate to the United States.

A program of action was mapped at a recent conference held here under the auspices of the American Confederation of Workers, a national farm labor organization composed of free, anti-communist trade unions.

Among the measures adopted was an agreement to combat discrimination against Mexican laborers in the United States. The delegates stood in connection with legal and illegal immigration of some Mexican workers. The conference resolved to work for the revision of the February 1917 Mexican Immigration Law, which was signed by the United States and Mexico. The conference also agreed to work for the revision of the standard labor contract attached to it.
